London, February 18.
Yesterday arrived a Mail from France.

Madrid, February 9.

MAdemoiselle de Beaujolois arrived the 1st Instant at Vitoria and continued there the next Day, being the Feast of the Purification: She proceeded on her Journey the 3d, intending to reach Burgos by the 6th, from whence she is to set out the 8th, in order to arrive at Buytrago the 12th, within 14 Leagues of this City. Their Catholick Majesties, the Prince and Princess of Asturias, with the Infante Don Carlos and the whole Court, are set out for Buytrago to receive Mademoiselle de Beaujolois, intending to return from thence the 14th, and conduct that Princess to this City, where several curious Fireworks will be played off at her Entry: No other kind of Publick Rejoycings will be made by reason of the Lent. An Advice-Boat is arrived at Cadiz with News that the Galleons from Peru richly laden are safely arrived at Teneriff Island in the Canaries, from whence they are daily expected at the Ports of this Kingdom.

Paris, Feb. 24. On the 20th Instant after Dinner, the King set out from Versailles, having with him in his Coach the Duke of Orleans, the Duke of Chartres, the Duke of Bourbon, the Count de Charolois, the Count de Clermont, and the Prince de Conti; preceeded, and also attended by several Detatchments of the Houshold Troops; and at Five in the Evening his Majesty arrived at the Tuilleries. The 22d at Ten in the Morning, the King took Coach, accompanied by the forenamed Princes, and went to the Parliament-House, after hearing Mass at the Holy Chapel, where the Parliament Deputies attended to receive him, and conduct his Majesty to the Great Chamber under the Royal Canopy that was purposely set up, and there his Majesty returned Thanks to the Duke of Orleans for the Care he had taken of the Kingdom during his Majesty's Minority, and then his Majesty prayed him to assist him with his Council as Occasion should require; some other Particulars he caused to be expressed by his Keeper of the Seals, to which the Parliament having answered, they registred the Declaration of his Majesty's Majority; that for causing due Reverence to be observed to the Churches; the Edict forbidding Duels, much stricter than the preceeding; and Letters Patents for the Keeper of the Seals: After this, the three new Dukes took the Oaths, and then the King went into his Coach, accompanied by the forenamed Princes, and returned to the Tuilleries, attended by the Houshold-Guards, the Gendarmes, the Light-Horse, the Musketeers, and the Band of Swiss; the Streets were lined all the Way from the Tuilleries to the Parliament Court by the French and Swiss Guards; the Guards of the Constablery, and the Horse and Foot Watch, were posted at all the Cross Passages. Yesterday and to Day the King received Compliments from the Princes of the Blood, the Superiour Courts, Foreign Ministers, and Nobility of the Court; his Majesty returns to Versailles on the 25th Instant. —— Petitions are henceforwards to be presented to the King, and sent back afterwards to M. Fontaine, who is to deliver them to the Secretary of State, as in the Time of Lewis 14th. Also the King designs to rise every Morning at Seven a-Clock; to hear Mass at Nine, and to begin his Grand Council at Eleven. The 22d Instant the Cardinal du Bois, who did not go to the Parliament, assisted in the Afternoon at the French Academy, where the Election was confirmed of the Count de Moneville, Secretary of State and Plenipotentiary at the Congress at Cambray. A fine Firework was played off the 22d in the Evening at the Greve; Bonfires also and Illuminations on Occasion of the King's Majority have been made almost in every Street of this City.
